SURVEY: The City of Broadview Hts. is currently working with Cuyahoga County Planning Commission on updating our community-wide Master Plan. We are currently working on the “Community Vision” and are seeking your input! Please take the survey here. The survey is open until 7/30/2019.

REGARDING PROPANE TANKS & RECYCLING Due to changes in the rules at the County for HHW, we the city, can no longer accept ANY propane tanks. From the County website: Propane tanks should NEVER be placed in your curbside recycling. Blue Rhino locations offer a free recycling program for 20# grill tanks. If you have a gas grill propane tank, that you no longer need, and would like to recycle, write “RECYCLE” on the tank and take it to any Blue Rhino location. Blue Rhino will collect the tank and refurbish it, if possible. If the tank does not meet the company's safety and quality standards, they will recycle the tank. Blue Rhino will accept any standard gas grill tank, including other brands. 20# propane cylinders can also be exchanged, for free, at the store where you purchase your new tank. Check with your local retailer for details. Small propane or butane canisters for a camp stove, lantern or torch (usually 2# or less) are not refillable and can be recycled through a scrap metal yard. Make sure the canister is empty by attaching it to the device it is used with and allowing the gas to run until it's gone or use a tool to decompress the item. If there is no scrap metal recycling available, and all of the gas is released, the canister may be discarded in the trash. Refrigerant gas, welding tanks and medical cylinders should be disposed or recycled through the company it was purchased or received from. Local businesses that recycle tanks and other gas cylinders include AAA Gas Supply (216.228.4800) and Air Gas Great Lakes (216.241.1696). You may also be able to recycle empty tanks at a local scrap metal yard.
