ALL ELECTIONS ARE IMPORTANT: HERE'S WHY

Our elected leaders decide how much local, state and federal tax you pay and how it is spent. They create policies concerning just about all of the things that touch our lives: roads, bridges, schools, Medicare, Medicaid, parks, public transportation, the military, public assistance and immigration. We also elect judges and prosecutors who control our system of justice.

In primary elections that are comparable to this one, turnout is normally low, about 20%.

This tells us that not everyone understands how important it is to vote in every election.

Think of it like this: if this trend continues, two out of ten people will decide important issues because the other eight voters stayed home.
